

December 2007

To Whom It May Concern,

Kevin and the Mountain Woodworks crew constructed a log home for us, which we finished in July of 2007. The home is on eight acres on Old Hill City Road outside of Hill City, SD. The home is approximately 2400 sq. ft plus a deck and an unattached garage. We live in Pennsylvania and, after deciding on a plan, we turned the project over to Kevin.

We couldn't be more pleased! The craftsmanship is outstanding. Kevin not only used superior products, but additionally the work the Mountain Woodworks crew did and the work of the subcontractors was exceptional. The attention to detail and Kevin's creativity shows throughout the house.

Building a home can create stress, especially when you are doing it from long distance. We were impressed with Kevin's attention to the budget, his efforts to control costs and his insistence that the home be maintenance free into the future. In many cases, we simply left decisions up to him and we were never disappointed. He was easy to work with on changes orders and the charges were very reasonable. I don't think we ever had major disagreement.

Kevin and his crew made building a log home a relatively painless process with no surprises on the budget. We received detailed accountings on each draw and we always knew where we stood as far as costs. I have had friends who do woodworking as a hobby visit the house and they can't believe the detail that shows throughout the home.

I would recommend Kevin and Mountain Woodworks to anyone.
